

PURPOSE AND DUTIES OF STATE COMMISSION OUTLINED IN ARTICLE

Believing that our Arlington readers are interested in the activities of the Massachusetts Industrial and Development Commission, we are publishing a series on the Commission's work. The first part of the report follows and will be succeeded by further details this week.

The Massachusetts Industrial and Development Commission was established by chapter 357 of the Acts of 1929 for the promotion and development of the industries and industrial, agricultural and recreational resources of the Commonwealth.

The duties of the Commission, as defined by this Act, are to conduct researches into industrial and agricultural conditions within the Commonwealth, and to seek to coordinate the activities of unofficial bodies organized for the promotion of the industrial, agricultural and recreational interests in the Commonwealth. Considering the amount of money the Commission has had to work with these duties have been fulfilled to an extent far in excess of expectations, and the good which has resulted from these activities more than justifies the modest expenditure.

For convenience, the accomplishments of this Commission are outlined in the same general order as they are authorized by the Act already referred to. The researches which have been conducted, then those efforts which were made to coordinate the activities of unofficial bodies in the Commonwealth will be outlined, and finally the printed matter distributed by this Commission in fulfillment of its objectives will be displayed and commented upon.

Industrial research was the first duty imposed upon this Commission by the Act which created it. Almost as soon as this Commission was organized it was directed to make an investigation of the conditions affecting the textile industry of the State. This important matter was studied thoroughly and an exhaustive survey was made, which, together with certain recommendations, was filed with the clerk of the House on December 8, 1930. Certain of the recommendations made by the Commission over two years ago have recently been advocated as a means of alleviating the burden which is now placed on Massachusetts manufacturers.

An industrial development survey of the Commonwealth was undertaken in March 1930, to determine the amount of floor space available for manufacturing, kinds of industries for which there were special openings or opportunities and any arrangements formulated to assist new industries which might desire to locate, together with other questions relating to help available, power rates, water rates, etc. This was the first survey of its kind ever conducted in Massachusetts. A summary of the findings was sent to every city and town in the State, to the industrial departments of the railroads serving Massachusetts, to power companies, to civic organizations interested in community development and to the industrial departments of real estate agencies. The Commission was complimented for this service to Massachusetts industry by many organizations which received this report and made use of it for finding locations for industrial prospects.

The report was accompanied by excerpts from a paper entitled "What Happens to the Industries You Buy," narrating some of the experiences cities and towns have had with new industries of an unsubstantial type.

Inquiries have been received from time to time in regard to the existence of certain metallic and non-metallic minerals in Massachusetts, such as diatomaceous earth, fuller's earth, molybdenum, doomite limestone and silica. The Commission felt that such inquiries might lead to the establishment of new industries, provided the desired materials existed here. A competent and experienced geologist surveyed and reported upon the mineral resources of the State.

This report was the first comprehensive survey of its kind that had been made by the State since 1841. The demand for the report indicates that it fills a long-felt want, and it will undoubtedly prove of greater value as time goes on.

The many questions which have come up in regard to the standards of labor legislation governing the employment of women and children in this State as compared with other industrial states resulted in the undertaking by the Commission of a comparative study of labor legislation in effect in the industrial states of the northeast and the new industrial states of the south. This digest of labor laws, which has been in great demand since its publication, clearly and concisely compares the restrictions on labor in these important industrial states.

Recognizing the general tendency during the past few years of industry to locate in other and newer sections of the country, to the detriment of Massachusetts, the Commission set about to ascertain the causes of these changes in our industrial structure. A well-known industrial research firm was engaged to make a brief study of the conditions affecting industry in this State. Although the funds available did not permit an exhaustive survey, the report which was made, entitled "A Brief Study of Industrial Massachusetts," brought out several important factors that the investigators felt were detrimental to the industrial welfare of the State, even in normal times. Practically all of those who read this report in a disinterested manner stated that they believed this report, brief as it was, was an important contribution to the future industrial policy of Massachusetts.

The construction of the State Pier at the Cape Cod Canal, which was authorized by the General Court in 1932 has caused considerable interest to be aroused as to just how it will affect the prosperity of that section of the State. In order to determine the facts regarding the most advantageous uses to which this pier can be put, this Commission is now making a survey of all phases of this matter, in cooperation with the Bureau of Business Research of Boston University. In this way the taxpayers of that section of the State will know what may be expected from the new pier in the economical movement of agricultural products, the possibility of the opening up of that part of the State as an industrial region, and the even greater popularity which this section will have among vacationists from New York, the West and the South, with the establishment of direct water transportation with New York.

The researches just outlined indicate that the Commission is deeply concerned with the long-range development of the industrial structure of the Commonwealth, to insure prosperity in the future in competition with other states, which are constantly making known their advantages. It is true that the tangible results of these industrial researches as yet been fully realized. Research does not always produce immediate results, but research does lay the foundation for intelligent progress at an expense which is extremely small when compared with the severe losses which often result from apathy or indifference.

Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in a radio address sponsored by this Commission on March 5, 1932, brought out among other things the following significant points in regard to research:

"Research has now become an absolute necessity, not only to develop business but also as an insurance to protect it. Any industry embarking upon a program of research must be willing frankly to admit the possibility of very considerable delay and expenditure before the returns will be evident."

Dr. Compton further stated that in his opinion the logic of the situation and the facts of recent history are a handwriting on the wall pointing the doom of any industry which, in these times of competition and of improvement, does not see to it that adequate and intelligent provision is made for research as one of its basic activities.

Manchester, N. H. Driver, Whose Auto Killed George Speros In Arlington Centre, Changes Plea—Had Previously Pleaded Not Guilty To Driving So As To Endanger and Operating Auto With Defective Brakes—Sentence To Be Imposed Next Monday

Amadee D. Lacasse, 24-year-old Manchester N. H. youth, whose auto struck and killed George Speros, 39, of 24 Moore place, Arlington on last Thanksgiving night changed his mind in the East Cambridge court yesterday and pleaded guilty to two charges to which he had previously pleaded not guilty, according to the police. Sentence will be imposed next Monday.

The case has been in the limelight ever since the fatal accident which stirred local people because the victim was a well-known business man. Lacasse was arraigned in the East Cambridge District court the morning after the fatal accident. He had been arrested by local officers at the scene of the accident and in court he was charged with manslaughter; driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor; drunkenness; driving so as to endanger, and operating an automobile with defective breaks.

Lacasse pleaded not guilty to all five charges and the case was continued. After several continuances, he was finally found guilty only on the last two charges, namely operating an automobile with defective breaks and operating so as to endanger. Lacasse was fined $10 for operating with defective breaks and given a six months sentence to the House of Correction on the charge of operating so as to endanger. He appealed and the case was put over to the higher court. The matter came up last Thursday but was continued until yesterday when Lacasse changed his plea of not guilty and pleaded "guilty" to the two charges. The case will now be disposed of next Monday when sentence is imposed.

The accident happened at the corner of Broadway and Alton street when Lacasse, who was driving a roadster in which were three other young people, crashed into Speros and Annetos Laskarin, also of 34 Moore pl. Speros died of injuries received and Laskarin was confined to the Symmes Arlington hospital with serious injuries. Both victims of the accident were well-known here, being engaged in a fruit business on Broadway.

Looking Inside

The Chamber of Commerce recommends building new streets by hand labor.

We built a piece of Highland avenue and some of Eastern avenue that way.

It took over two months to do the Eastern avenue job.

It cost less than 30 cents per cubic yard to dig out Massachusetts avenue and Bedford street last year including trucking the dirt to the dump.

Hand digging about $2.50 per cubic yard plus more money for trucking expense due to longer waiting for hand filling of load. Would abutters be willing to pay the additional cost?

No. The town would have to assume it.

Simply a different pocket to pay welfare.

Will Expose Holy Shroud, To View of Public

The holy shroud in which the body of Christ is said to have been wrapped after the crucifixion, probably will be exposed to public view in connection with the holy year celebration it was said in semi-official circles today.

The shroud, which has been the property of the Italian ruling house for the past five centuries, is now kept in a marble jeweled case in a cathedral in Turin.

King Victor Emmanuel is understood to have given his consent to plans for showing the shroud publicly. Mr. Maurilio Fossati, archbishop of Turin, went to Vatican City to confer with Pope Pius, whose consent to the proposal is considered likely.

The shroud was last exposed in 1931 after being kept from public view for 32 years.

Judge Frederic B. Greenhaile of the superior court, assigned to the trial of the Industrial Bank & Trust Company cases, Saturday allowed motions to quash 22 indictments against Eaton, former law partner of Edwin T. McKnight, president of the Medford Trust Company and indicted with Eaton and many others in the Industrial Bank case. Eaton is still facing trial on 64 indictments, 35 of which charge conspiracy, a misdemeanor. The other 29 indictments charge felonies.

In the 22 indictments quashed Eaton was charged variously with being an accessory before the fact to alleged violations of banking laws by bank officials, violations which constitute a felony. The indictments range from one count to 30 counts each, and totalled 153 counts. Today Eaton was charged in the quashed indictments with inciting President Charles B. Strout of the bank and bank Commissioner Roy A. Hovey to aid other bank officials in making fictitious transfers in bank dealings, with aiding or inciting others in making "colorable" transfers and in a 30-count indictment with having procured Strout to make false entries.

In the quashed indictments he was charged with having been an accessory to the alleged commission of crimes by Strout, Hovey, William J. H. Worthington, Albert J. McKnight, a brother of Edwin T. McKnight; Robert Gardner Wilson, J. Waldo Pond, John T. Cavanagh and William J. Wallace, all of these but Hovey being directors or officers of the closed bank.

U. S. Troops On Parade In Philippines

On the eve of packing her kitbag before sailing for another "hitch" in the Philippines, Warrant Officer Olive L. Hoskins, who bears the distinction of being the only honest-to-goodness woman soldier in the United States Army, looks back over her twenty-five years service with Uncle Sam's fighting forces. And the only fault she has to find with her career is that she was denied the privilege of going overseas with the army during the World War. Miss Hoskins has been an army clerk since 1907 when she took a civil service examination in the Philippines. In 1916 when headquarters clerks were abolished, she became an army field clerk with the rank of Warrant Officer. Soon after she was transferred from the Philippines to San Francisco and thence to the Mexican border. After the misunderstanding with our southern neighbors had been cleared up, Warrant Officer Hoskins was ordered back to San Francisco. On the United States entering the World War, she did all in her power to persuade the powers that be to allow her to go "Over there," but her request was refused. During the period of hostilities, if she was attached to an intelligence unit, a job she found interesting, if she was attached to a headquarters unit, a job she found interesting, if she was attached to a headquarters unit, a job she found interesting, if she was attached to a headquarters unit, a job she found interesting.

Summit, N. J., Jan. 17—The nicest thing about the United States army is that it is made up entirely—well, almost entirely—of men. That is what Warrant Officer Olive L. Hoskins, the U. S. Army's one and only honest-to-goodness woman soldier, thinks about the force to which she belongs.

You may wonder why Miss Hoskins sides with the men against her own sex. Well, she explains that during her 25 years in the army she has learned to know men. She thinks that they are invariably more honest than women; that they are not so petty, nor so irritable nor so jealous.

Warrant Officer Hoskins, who is in Summit on furlough before starting off for another "hitch" in the Philippines, has labored among Uncle Sam's fighting men since 1907. In that year, while visiting a sister in the Philippines, she took a civil service examination, came through with flying colors and got a job as a headquarters clerk at the salary of $1,200 a year.

There she stayed, doing clerical work, until 1916, when an army order decreed that all headquarters were to become field clerks, ranking in the army proper. Thus did Miss Hoskins become Uncle Sam's only feminine doughboy.

Soon after the abolishment of headquarters clerks, Miss Hoskins, now a warrant officer, was transferred to San Francisco, and from thence ordered to the Mexican border for eleven months during the little misunderstanding we had with our Southern neighbor. When the border business was all cleared up, she was sent back to Western Department Headquarters at San Francisco.

On the United States entering the World War, Warrant Officer Hoskins used all her power of persuasion in an effort to have herself sent overseas. She even tried to bring influence to bear

HOLD ON TO YOUR SELF-RESPECT

"Am I slipping?" "Is my ability giving out?" "Has my resourcefulness dried up?" "Has my right hand lost its cunning?" "Is my will-power on the wane?" Such questions plague many men today. They won't down. In view of what has befallen, this is natural. But it is not logical. If you were the only person whose income had diminished, if yours were the only business that has become unprofitable, you would be justified in concluding that something had gone wrong with you, with your brains, with your judgment, with your capacity. The truth is, however, that not one man escaped the devastating effects of events since 1929.

Ponder these facts: The total income of the people of this country is estimated to have fallen from approximately $90,000,000,000 to less than $50,000,000,000. One-fourth of all who were gainfully employed are now completely idle, and a still larger number are working only part-time; almost every high salary has been drastically reduced; the income of every investor has been severely curtailed; most wages have been cut. That is what has happened to individuals. The majority of companies are today paying not a single dollar on their common stocks. Examine the quarterly or other earnings' statements published day-by-day and you discover that it is unusual rather than usual for any net profit whatsoever to be shown. In a great many cases the losses run into very large figures. Since the panic there have been about 80,000 commercial failures. In addition some 4,750 banks have closed. Our foreign trade has shrunk from over $9,600,000,000 in 1929 to approximately $3,000,000,000 for this year.

Under all these circumstances why should we feel that we should have gone along as if nothing out of the ordinary has happened? How could we in reason have hoped to receive a special dispensation? If we still have a job—any kind of a job—we should realize that we are among the fortunate ones. If we have been able to keep our business going, even at a loss, we have reason for self-congratulation. Even those who have lost out completely, financially, workwise, businesswise, must not conclude that they have outlived their usefulness. Whatever befalls, we must hold on to our self-respect. We must indulge overmuch in neither self-blame nor self-pity. We must not surrender abjectly to fear, but lay fast hold on faith. Our heads may be battered and bloody, but they must not become bowed. We must fight, not faint. Remember that no man is defeated until he himself admits defeat.

Don't admit defeat.—The Forbes Magazine.

Industrial Bank Trial Held Up By Illness Of One Of Defendants

Illness of Clydes J. Silva, former assistant treasurer of the closed Industrial Bank & Trust Company, caused Judge Frederic B. Greenhalge in Suffolk Superior Court yesterday to put over until today the trial of 34 indictments in connection with the closed bank's affairs.

After Thomas J. Kelly, Silva's counsel, announced his illness, Silva was examined by Medical Examiner Timothy Leary and declared physically unfit to be in court. The court and Asst. Dist. Atty. John J. Murphy prepared to empanel a jury and go ahead with the trial of the other defendants as Silva had waived jury trial. Counsel for the other defendants then indicated their willingness to waive a jury trial and the court recessed until Wednesday in the hope that all defendants might be tried together.

The 34 indictments center upon an alleged transaction in which, according to the Commonwealth $17,027.59 of the bank's funds were misappropriated. All six defendants are indicted for aiding and abetting and Charles B. Strout, former president, Silva and William J. Wallace, a former clerk, are named as principals. In addition: Edwin T. McKnight, former president of the closed Medford Trust Company, John E. Eaton, his former law partner, and Harry L. Cushman are also

3. Always be kind to dumb animals.
4. Write a letter to Daddy Sunshine, or have Mother or Dad write it for you, every now and then.
5. Try to bring a "Ray" of Sunshine into the lives of your parents and others every day of the week and every week of the year.

These rules are not very difficult for good girls and boys to keep. Most of them are kept by them anyway. Mail your letters and stories to Daddy Sunshine, in care of this paper. He will answer them in the Daddy Sunshine Column. Write on but one side of the paper, and place your age and address on the letter after your name. Give the day, month and year of your birth. To join the club all you have to do is promise to keep the rules—and keep them.

PUNS AND DOUBLES

Dear Daddy Sunshine,— A bootblack is the farmer's son. Receiving many dimes. The farmer's task—his chosen one. Makes hay while son he shines.

Another father had a buoy. A fisherman was he; The fisher's wife was filled with joy. Her boy loved not the sea.

The catcher's young maid made a muff. To keep her finger warm. The catcher made a mighty muff. That brought his fingers harm.

The dentist's sonny had a pull. To prosper in his youth; The dentist was obliged to pull. To prosper tooth by tooth.

And Daddy Sunshine has a Klub. For hits and wholesome fun. And big Babe Ruth swings with his club. And hits a long home run.

From Baby Marilyn
Dear Daddy Sunshine;
Just a few lines from Baby Sunshine to let you know I have not forgotten you. I had a very nice Christmas and hope you and the other club members had the same. Santa Claus was very good to me. He brought me a new bicycle, a baby doll, a little white knitted dog, a doll's swing, a bathrobe, a pair of bunny slippers, a box of handkerchiefs, a set of cooking pans, a box of crayons, some books and several other small toys.

I am going to send some more puzzles for the ambitious members to solve. The first will be a puzzle on movie stars like the one printed last week. Give the right first names. Here it is:

A law providing heavier penalties for stealing cars seems to the registrar of motor vehicles, Morgan T. Ryan, the only way to check this form of lawlessness, which is resulting more frequently in serious accidents, some of them fatal.

"It would seem that much heavier mandatory penalties provided by statute and meted out to such drivers by the courts of the state is the only solution for this crime," he says in his weekly report.

Sixteen persons killed last week, two fewer than the previous week and the same number as during the second week of January last year, bring the total deaths listed so far this fiscal year to 106, or 12 fewer than for the corresponding weeks of December and January a year ago. Last week's victims included 13 adults and three children against 14 adults and two children a year ago. Eleven were pedestrians, three occupants of motor vehicles, two of horse-drawn vehicles. Boston was the scene of three of the fatalities, Somerville of two.

"Three more hit-run drivers left their victims lying dead in the street," the registrar says. "Two motorists struck horse-drawn vehicles, killing their occupants. An attempt to cut off line led to a fatal head-on collision. A truckman driving in the rain, probably with obscured windshield or with no adequate windshield wiper ran over a young boy and older sister."

There were 117 operators convicted last week of driving while under the influence of liquor, 45 more than during the preceding week. Of these 19 were committed to jail, eight from district courts and five from superior courts. Five were convicted in district courts for the second time within six years of operating while under the influence of liquor. Two were sentenced to jail and appealed and three were committed to jail.

There were 186 licenses and registrations suspended or revoked, 265 more than in the week before and 26 more than in the corresponding period last year. Of these 177 were for driving while under the influence of liquor.

More Taxpayers Will Be Required To File Income Tax Returns

Although the final date for filing income tax returns for the calendar year 1932 is March 15, many thousands of taxpayers have already filed their income tax returns at the office of Thomas W. White, Collector of Internal Revenue, 22 Pearl Street, Boston.

With the reduction of personal exemption from $1500 to $1000 for unmarried persons, and from $3500 to $2500 for married persons, hundreds of thousands of taxpayers will now be required to file returns who, for the past few years, were not subject to the provisions of the income tax law.

Blank income forms have been mailed from the office of Collector White to only those taxpayers who filed for the previous year, so that taxpayers who have a liability to file this year and who have not received a tax blank should procure them without delay. Failure to receive a blank does not excuse a taxpayer from filing a return, or prevent the assertion of penalties for delinquency.

The rate of normal tax is 4 per cent on the first $4,000, and 8 per cent on the remaining net income. Surtaxes are levied upon net incomes in excess of $6,000.

A new provision in the Revenue Act of 1932 limits the amount of deduction that may be taken for losses sustained from the sale or exchange of stocks and bonds of corporations held by the taxpayer for less than two years.

Sales of stocks and bonds of corporations should be segregated into two classes: (1) Those held for two years or less; (2) Those held for more than two years. If a net gain in Class 1, it should be reported in the ordinary manner; viz., subject to the normal and surtax rates. If a net loss in Class 1, it is not deductible for income tax purposes, but such amount may be carried forward and applied against gains from similar transactions for 1933.

There has been no change in the methods of reporting a net gain or a net loss from Class 2 transactions.

Losses sustained from stocks and bonds becoming worthless in 1932 may be deducted without any limitation.

Lost Egyptian Color May Yet Be Made Again Says Chemist

An ancient Egyptian color, the ingredients of which have been a mystery of the ages, may finally be manufactured for public use, according to Dr. Lyman C. Newell, professor of chemistry at Boston University College of Liberal Arts and chairman of the Division of Chemical Education of the American Chemical Society.

The color is the famous Egyptian blue, a study of which is being made by Prof. Newell for the American Chemical Society. For centuries the exact composition of the famous blue was a mystery to the scientific world. It was not until 1815, when Sir Humphrey Davy sought to discover the ingredients of the color, that scientists began experiments in earnest to determine its composition.

SINCERE

Spoken lightly let us say
The splendid word sincere
Is unobtrusive on the way
Like others that we hear.

But study it and we will find
It is a precious gem:
A treasure to the heart and mind
Among right thinking men.

Synonyms for it abound
As, perfect, real and true,
Unfeigned, honest, whole and
And unaffected too.

Free from hypocritical traits
With frank and steady eyes
The sincere man most highly rates

With freedom from disguise.
"My words fly up," so Shakespear sings:
"My thoughts remain below."
Words without thoughts (what empty things)
Do not to Heaven go."

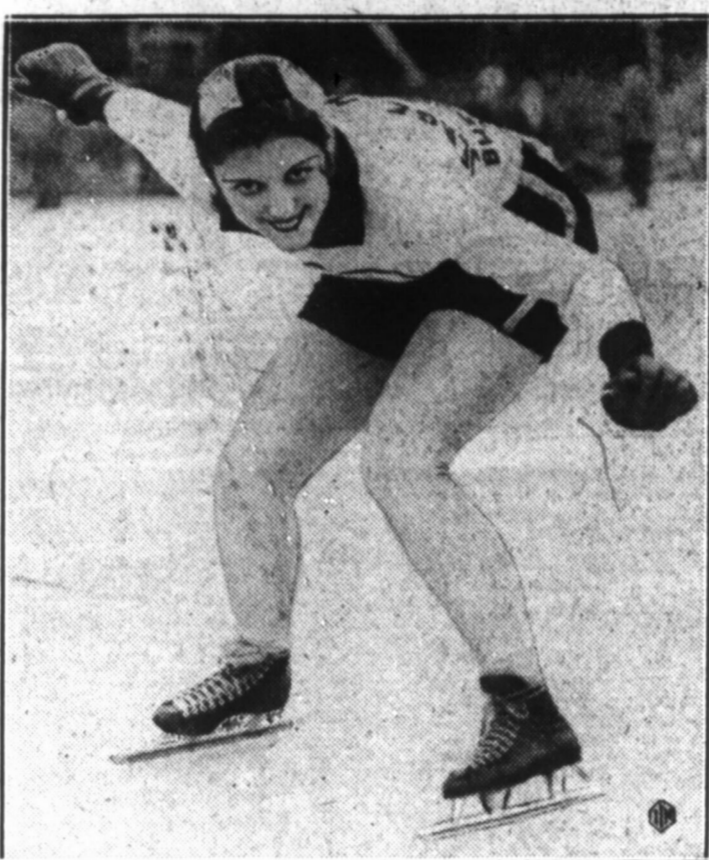

This brief consideration thus
Shows that it has no peer.
With faith and hope and love for us
We honor you Sincere.

Winner of Three Ice Titles

No wonder Kit Klein, charming speed skater, of Buffalo, N. Y., smiles so amply for the camera. Not only did she prove herself a champion at the Middle Atlantic skating championships at Newburgh, N. Y., but she did it threefold. Miss Klein, the East's newest skating sensation, won the 220, 440 and 880 yards races after fighting off the keen competition of America's best women skaters. She won the 1,500-meter event in the Winter Olympics at Lake Placid last year.

Proceeds Of The Affair Will Aid The Bray Club Fund For Injured Football Players — Brother Gilbert, Medford Legion Trio, Boxing, Wrestling and Many Football Notables Head The Program — Program Of Entertainment Including Dancing and Singing Is Listed

In aid of its fund to defray the expenses of the injured football players, the Alderman Bray Club will sponsor and conduct a monster athletic night which will bring to the Roberts Jr. High Auditorium some of the most notable sports celebrities in Greater Boston. The date is Tuesday evening, January 24th, a week from tonight.

The Bray Club has gone to great trouble and expense to bring prominent football, baseball experts and coaches and to present a top-notch program of boxing, wrestling and entertainment. There will be 5 bouts of boxing and a full program of wrestling of Tufts College wrestlers. Swede Nelson, football line coach at Harvard will show the Harvard-Army game motion picture of the 1932 game and pictures of the long-remembered "long count" Tunney-Dempsey fight at Philadelphia. Tom McCabe, prominent Boston schoolboy sports writer and football official, will be on hand to explain many of the difficult and unusual plays in football.

O'Leary's Minstrels, comprising three tap and soft shoe dancers and a musical trio, the Medford Legion Trio with Charlie Doherty, Shy Donahue, "Alderman Gilroy" of Malden, John Bell, banjo, Jackie Johnson, frisco dance band, Clifford and Dorothy, young Medford adagio dancers and Walter Garden and George Garland, a singing and dancing act, make up a part of the attractive entertainment program.

Brother Gilbert discoverer of Babe Ruth who has appeared at many smoke talks and athletic nights both in Medford and hereabouts during the past four or five years teacher at Immaculate Conception High school, will give one of his comical speeches. MEDFORD THEATRE

Fifteen stars are cast together in "If I Had a Million" film drama, which is now on display at the Medford Theatre for four days starting Sunday matinee.

Together they make the most important array of cinema talent which has ever been seen in a single production.

The stars are Gary Cooper, George Raft, Wynne Gibson, Charles Laughton, Jack Oakie, Frances Dee, Charlie Ruggles, Alison Skipworth, W. C. Fields, Mary Boland, Roscoe Karns, May Robson, Gene Raymond, Lucien Littlefield and Richard Bennett.

They play in the story of an eccentric old millionaire, who distributes his fortune among nine persons whose names he chooses at random from a telephone directory.

One of the beneficiaries is an ex-vaudeville actress; another, a lady of dubious past, a third, a rowdy Marine; another, a young husband; another, an abused clerk in a china shop; another, a condemned murderer only a few hours from the electric chair; another, an inhabitant of an "Old Ladies' Home"; another, a forger being sought by police; and the last, an underdog in an office.

To each, sudden wealth means something else. Tragedy and comedy follow in wake of the gifts; its results are sometimes ironic, sometimes romantic.

The Navy's nine electrical driven battleships use enough electrical power to furnish heat, light and power for 9,000,000 people.
